課程宗旨： This course adopts a multidisciplinary approach to the study of intercultural communication issues. Emphasis will be placed on students' analyses of their own and others' culturally-shaped ways of believing, valuing and interacting in order to identify differences between the communicative conventions of one group and another, understand potential sources of miscommunication, and develop intercultural communicative competence (ICC) in today' s increasingly globalized world. In this course, students will be expected to participate in the classroom. Individual and group activities will be designed to promote the discussion of intercultural communication. Moreover, a number of multicultural issues will be introduced to foster students' understandings of the knowledge construction process. Course Objectives Upon successful completion of this course, students will be able to: <ol style="list-style-type: none"> <li>1. elaborate on ideas/opinions and discuss various cultural issues</li> <li>2. acquire knowledge of and competence in intercultural communication</li> <li>3. become aware of their own culture and develop a deeper understanding of other cultures</li> <li>4. acquire knowledge of multicultural issues and understand human diversity as well as human commonalities</li> <li>5. gain access to knowledge from multiple perspectives</li> <li>6. develop skills to improve inter-group relations and build community across cultures</li> <li>7. gain the ability to reflect critically on and examine their own value system, beliefs and attitudes, as well as form the basis for their own cultural transformations</li> </ol>
