課程宗旨： Course Objectives	With the coming of the digital era, cross-border e-commerce has become an important business model. As the digital platform presents a new way for international expansion, developing an international digital marketing strategy has become a critical challenge for businesses. This course will explore the realities and implications of electronic commerce from a marketer's perspective and will introduce a wide range of cross-border e-commerce issues, such as global cross-border trends, cross-border e-commerce practices, and e-commerce ecosystems, the challenges of traditional industry's digital transformation, online consumer behavior and consumption patterns, omnichannel marketing and major e-commerce platforms in regional markets. In addition, the course will introduce the concepts of e-commerce, cross-border e-commerce, and digital marketing practices through the case discussion on the practices of firms and product types to develop students' digital marketing planning and execution capabilities in the cross-border e-commerce marketplaces.
